

Author Biography

Grete DeAngelo is the mother of two boys and a history teacher at MMI Preparatory School, the same independent school from which she earned her high school diploma. She worked as a reporter, fact-checker, researcher, and proofreader after graduating from Lehigh University with a bachelor's degree in journalism and a master's degree in history. Her hobbies include reading other women's fiction novels, enjoying the great outdoors, and cleaning her house when it gets dusty. Like every other writer, she's dreamed of being a writer her whole life, but she only recently got around to writing rather than just fantasizing about it. Being a mom is the best thing ever, but the boys aren't teenagers yet, so check back with her in a few years on that. If you ask earnestly, she'll be happy to tell you about her vegan lifestyle. DeAngelo lives with her family in northeastern Pennsylvania, about two miles away from her childhood home.